

It has become clear that protesting this action is a waste of my time, but I believe in exercising my democratic rights, even though my government is now owned by the rich.

The pretense that the FCC is removing the rules maintaining a truly open and free Internet is an action for the sake of “the little guy,” is an insult. At least have the decency to put the proper title on this step back into the 1920’s:

“Selling the Net to the Power Brokers”

The Great Depression II will be a lot worse than the 1930’s. The population is three times the size and hoards of hungry citizens may make the rich rue these power grabs. It’ll be ugly for us all!
